

TRUCKER FREED, COSTS DIVIDED IN ASSAULT CASE

Jury Acquits Baltimore Man; New Oxford Worker Injured.

CIVIL ACTION ON WEDNESDAY

After deliberating for more than two hours, a verdict of not guilty was returned by the jury that had heard the case of Oliver Henry Snyder, Wallright avenue, Baltimore, charged with assault and battery by automobile by Louis W. Wagonman, assistant superintendent of highways at the local office of the department. The verdict divided the costs equally between Snyder and Wagonman.

Trial of the case, the only criminal action to go before a jury this session, occupied morning and afternoon sessions Monday. The case was placed in the jury's hands for deliberation about 4:30 o'clock and it was not until after 6:30 o'clock that the verdict was reached.

New Oxford Man Injured

The charge was laid by Wagonman after William Perry, New Oxford, an assistant foreman over a gang of highway workers on the Hanover-Cross Keys highway, had been injured when his car was struck by Snyder's truck the afternoon of November 27, near Warwick's store.

Witnesses called by the commonwealth testified that Perry's car had been off the east side of the highway when it was struck by Snyder's southbound truck, while Snyder said he sounded his horn. Harry W. Polly, Baltimore, the only defense witnesses, asserted that Perry had driven his car across the highway directly in their path. Snyder said he sounded his horn, but that Perry had driven directly in front of him. The truck shoved the Perry car off the side of the road, Snyder said.

Jurors to Return Wednesday

The defense attorneys, John D. Keith and Franklin R. Bigham, Esqs., rested their case a few minutes after 3 o'clock, after which District Attorney John P. Butt recalled Amos Baker and Patrolman George S. Harleman in rebuttal to question them briefly about measurements taken at the scene of the crash.

At 3:15 o'clock Judge W. C. Sheely dismissed finally all witnesses who had been subpoenaed in criminal cases and told jurors, except those sitting in the Snyder case, that they need not return to court until Wednesday morning, when a civil damage suit will go on trial at 9:30 o'clock.

The action to be called for trial Wednesday morning is that in which Alice M. and James Woodruff, of New Jersey, are the plaintiffs.

Organized three years ago, the association has built up assets to $265,836 including unpaid interest of $5,062 on loans.

Following the meeting of stockholders, which was attended by more than 100 farmers, officers of the board were elected as follows: J. L. Zellers, re-elected president; Harry S. Stoner, of Orrtanna, vice-president; Grover C. Myers, of Gardners, secretary-treasurer.

INVITE GIRL, 10, TO CUT CAKE AT ROOSEVELT BALL

Birthday Committee Makes Arrangements; 3 Parties Friday Night.

At a meeting Monday evening of the general committee on arrangements for the President's ball in Gettysburg, an invitation was extended to Miss Anne Faber, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Faber, Chambersburg street, who was stricken with infantile paralysis more than four years ago, to cut the huge birthday cake at the local celebration.

The cake-cutting will climax the parties that are being planned for Friday evening at the Hotel Gettysburg and the Eagle hotel.

Anne Faber's fight for health since she was taken ill here in September, 1932, the most recent case of infantile paralysis in Gettysburg, has been followed with interest by residents of this community and by medical circles in the nation who closely followed new treatment methods used in her case.

Fred G. Pfeiffer, general chairman of the committee, made announcement that a third President's birthday ball will be held Friday evening in Gettysburg. Colored residents of the town are arranging a celebration to be staged at The Savoy, former colored Elks' home, West High street. An Easton "swing band" is to provide music for the dancers.

Report on Ticket Sale
The orchestra committee announced that the contract for providing music for the affairs at the two hotels has been let to Richard Codori. His Pennsylvania Ramblers will furnish music at one hotel and Richard Keagy's orchestra from Waynesboro, recently appearing at the Hotel Alexander at Hagerstown, will be assigned to the other hotel. Assignment of the two orchestras has been left in Mr. Codori's hands.

First reports on general and patron's ticket sales were received and were highly encouraging. Comparison with figures for last year showed the sale of tickets for the forthcoming balls to be well ahead of the sale at the same date in 1936. Ira Y. Baker, reporting for the ticket committee announced that over 300 pasteboards have been distributed among committee members by Harry J. Troxell, ticket chairman.

The tickets will admit persons to either of the affairs at the hotels, where tags will be handed out with programs, making it possible for the celebrators to migrate from one hotel to the other.

Lions Group to Attend Next C. of C. Meeting

Service Club Members Hear Report On Organization Session of Chamber.

During a round-table discussion at the weekly session of the Gettysburg Lions club Monday evening at the Eagle hotel, the members directed the club's Chamber of Commerce committee to attend the next meeting of the group that is re-organizing a local Chamber and report at the following meeting of the Lions' club.

Stewart Moyer gave a report on the first meeting of the C. of C. organizers. The local service club named among its standing committees last year a Chamber of Commerce committee to encourage the formation of an active commerce group in Gettysburg.

Members of the club heard from William Johnson, blind Gettysburg college student who has received a "white cane" from the Lions, that he receives a current monthly periodical in braille which he will be glad to lend to other blind persons in the county who are able to read that system.

There was no formal program at the session. President Ralph Z. Oyler presided.

(By the Associated Press)

Fear-stricken tens of thousands cowered behind weakened levees or fled to higher levels today as the monstrous yellow tide of the Ohio river swelled to record-breaking flood heights on its sweep to the Mississippi.

Eddying in muddy, slow-rising torrents, the waters spread over an area of more than a million acres, taking a toll of at least 111 known dead, driving 550,000 from their homes and leaving many thousands more marooned. Whole towns and villages showed only rooftops.

Property damage was estimated far in excess of $10,000,000 and on every side, from city officials and

ASK DAMAGES IN DEATH OF GIRL

Parents Start Trespass Action Against Driver of Bus in Fatal Accident.

An action in trespass to collect damages for an automobile accident which occurred January 28, 1936, in Hamilton township was filed this morning in the office of Prothonotary C. Arthur Brame by Raymond P. Topper, Esq., attorney for the plaintiffs, Frank and Linnie R. Wilkinson, Hamilton township, Orrtanna R. 1. Damages are sought from J. Edward Spence, Orrtanna.

The amount of damages to be asked has not been revealed. No statement of claim in the suit has yet been filed.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson are suing as the result of an accident which caused the death of their 11-year-old daughter, Mary. The accident occurred in front of the Wilkinson home but there were no actual eye-witnesses to the tragedy. The child is believed to have fallen beneath the wheels of the heavy bus when she stepped or fell from the bus step.

Senator Rice Sponsors Bill for Gettysburg Peace Memorial

Measure Calls for Creation of $100,000 Fund; Eternal Light To Be Built on Battlefield and Dedicated at Anniversary and Reunion in 1938.

State Senator John S. Rice, Gettysburg, Monday introduced a bill in the legislature to create a special fund of $100,000, to be known as the Gettysburg Peace Memorial fund, for the purpose of building an eternal light peace memorial on the battlefield here.

The measure is in conjunction with a bill providing for the seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg and the reunion of the Blue and Gray in 1938.

The eternal light peace memorial, the cost of which is to be borne by appropriations from the various states, may be erected on Big Round Top on the spot where the observation tower now stands.

Memorial Plan Suggested

Suggested plans for the memorial call for an observation platform 75 feet from the base, while thirty feet above, and from the top, will burn an eternal flame.

The memorial and its flare will be dedicated to every man, woman and child who participated in any way in the Civil war.

Senator Rice also introduced an amendment to his bill that created a commission in 1935 to plan reunion. The amended section of the act reads:

"It (the state commission) shall have power to provide by contract or otherwise, for the procuring and erection of a suitable peace memorial on the Gettysburg battlefield and for its dedication at the time of the observance of said anniversary, if funds for such purpose shall be provided; and with the approval of the proper authorities of the federal government, to select a site for such memorial."

army engineers, came the warning: "The worst is yet to come."
Wholesale evacuations of flood-stricken towns in Tennessee, western Kentucky, southeastern Missouri, Arkansas and Mississippi, brought the greatest mass flood exodus in history.

In the lower Mississippi valley, where 600,000 were made homeless in 1927, authorities awaited the big test of the great system of dikes and levees built along a 300-mile stretch of the Mississippi after the 1927 disaster.

"A super flood is on its way," came the grim warning from Lieut.-Col. Eugene Reybold, district chief of the United States army engineers, at Memphis, Tennessee.

Reybold predicted flood stages along the Mississippi of at least ten feet higher than records set in the tragedy of 1913 and 1927.

President Roosevelt, anxiously watching the progress of the tidal sweep through 11 states, sent out the crisp command to legislators debating a $790,000,000 relief request: "Step on it."

Red Cross office renewed their urgent appeal for contributions to a $400,000,000 relief fund. The first day's receipts at national headquarters in Washington, D. C., reached $375,078.

At midday, Hopkins reported to the president that conditions at Louisville and Cincinnati were slightly improved, with the Ohio river stationary at those points for the time being at least. He added, however, that the river might resume its rise.

Oxford Township Resident Asks Sum of A. P. Markle, New Oxford.

A damage suit for $10,000 was started today in Adams county courts at noon today with the filing of a statement of claim by John P. Butt, Esq., counsel for Elmer J. Dillman, Oxford township. The action is brought against Ammon P. Markle, New Oxford.

The suit is the result of an automobile accident in State College, Pa., shortly after midnight the morning of November 6, 1936, when a car driven by Markle struck a parked machine. Dillman was an occupant of the Markle car and claims that he received serious injuries in the crash.

He alleges that the accident was due to the careless, negligent and reckless operation of Markle's machine. The men had left New Oxford the preceding night en route up-state on a hunting trip.

Dillman claims that he received a fracture of the skull and other serious injuries that have resulted in permanent loss of hearing in the right ear, loss of use of the nerves in the right side of his face, loss of normal control of the right eyelid and loss of the use of two fingers on the right hand.

Markle has 15 days in which to file an affidavit of defense.

SEVEN TEXAS GOVERNORS SERVE IN TWO YEARS

Austin, Tex. (AP).—Texas is pondering a claim to some sort of record in number of governors within a two-year period.

Seven persons have served as chief executive since January 1, 1935. They were Former Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, Gov. James V. Allred, Lt. Gov. Walter P. Woodul and State Senators Ken M. Regan, Wilbourne B. Collier, John S. Reddick and Tom DeBerry.

A principal reason for the numerous "governors" was that the occupant of the position of president pro tempore of the senate changed so often. A different senator is named for each session of the legislature and each period between sessions. Four legislative sessions have been held during the current biennium.

Allred did not succeed Mrs. Ferguson until after January 1, 1935. On four occasions, both he and the lieutenant governor have been out of the state at the same time, leaving the governor's job to the president pro tem. of the senate.

Unknown Man Is Found Dead

home here by Steward Calvin Smith.

Dr. Edgar A. Miller, Adams county coroner, was notified, and after an investigation signed a death certificate attributing death to heart failure. An empty whiskey bottle, found lying by the body in the barn, indicated that the man had been drinking since his arrival there and that intoxication may have been a contributing cause of death.

A sum of money, which police say will be about enough to pay burial expenses, was found in the man's clothing. The sum was less than $50.

Description Given

The police description of the man follows: Aged about 65 years, five feet nine inches tall, weighs about 150 pounds, American, white, mixed gray and black hair, short gray mustache, four days' growth of heavy gray beard, pointed nose and chin and gray eyes. His clothing was in rags and he had no baggage.

The body will be held here until funeral arrangements are completed.

This is the second unidentified man to die this month in Adams county. On January 5, a negro itinerant was found dead in an unused kiln at the Alwine brick company plant, New Oxford.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

BY FREDERICK JACKSON

SYNOPSIS: Count Vronski, who is blackmailing Anne Phelps with a packet of love letters, is shot to death in her studio. Only Anne, Bigelow, the young American from Paris, and Karanaskoff, the glamorous dancer, are in the apartment. They hide the body in a cupboard during a gay party, then Bigelow and Dr. Austrelitz, the psychologist, remove it to Vronski's apartment. Police arrest Thorne Dryden, a young millionaire who hated Vronski, but refuses to talk. Dryden saw Vronski being taken home, his lawyer says. Anne and Bigelow call on Karanaskoff.

Chapter 19

Bigelow Sees His Shadow

The Russian woman was in and would be charmed to see them, they discovered.

Her suite was full of hot-house lilacs and daffodils and bowls of heavy Parma violets, although spring was still a long way off.

"Woody Taylor," she explained with a wave of her hand toward the flowers. "He sends me a florist's shop every day. An impossible young man. One simply cannot discourage him."

She was wearing an elaborate negligee woven of the blues and greens of a peacock's tail, and smoking one of her long Russian cigarettes.

"You have lunched?" she asked. "I did not want anything—only caviar and champagne. . . . So—after all—it was someone named Dryden who killed my tiresome countryman, eh? The papers said it, so it must be so. A stupid man who announces everywhere what he intends to do. So for us, the incident is ended, is it not?"

"I hope so," said Bigelow.

"But it must be so," she dismissed the matter with a shrug and turned from him to Anne. "And you, my dear—you are feeling better, yes?"

"Yes," answered Anne, hesitatingly.

"That is good. It is foolish to concern oneself too much over anything. The past is finished—one can do nothing about it. And the future nobody knows. When it arrives, one will consider it. Until then, it is no use to make plans. So it is only the present that is important. That is how I look at life. If the present is agreeable, one cannot ask more."

She leaned back, smiling, and clasping her hands behind her head, called out something to Mariushka in Russian. "Wait, I will surprise you, now. I have another gift from that ridiculous Woody Taylor which you must see," she explained. "Mariushka is bringing it."

Tsarevitch Gets Fed
Mariushka came in smiling for a wonder, with a tiny yellow tiger cub on her arms. Its eyes were only half open, and it was very plump, but not much larger than a good sized cat.

"What is it?" cried Anne, staring. "A tiger," cried Karanaskoff. "but a baby!" She took it into her arms and hugged it. "Isn't he sweet? He has my eyes. You see? And he is called Tsarevitch. Until now, he takes only milk from a feeding bottle. You shall see. But when he grows teeth, he shall eat all my creditors and the critics who do not admire me, and rival dancers, perhaps, and lovers who no longer please me. So he will grow fat, no?"

Mariushka was dispatched for the feeding bottle and serious matters were ignored for the rest of the visit.

As Bigelow and Anne passed through the lobby of the hotel on their way out, Bigelow saw an inconspicuous little man rise and follow them. And going uptown his taxi was just behind theirs. But Bigelow did not mention the matter to Anne.

He dropped Anne at her door, explaining that he had promised to look in on Austrelitz, and was relieved to see that the little man in the second taxi trailed him instead of remaining on watch before the Phelps house. He was the quarry, apparently, and not Anne. This fact encouraged him considerably, although it did mean that someone was already hot on the trail. Was it only Strong, he wondered, or the police?

At the doctor's office, Bigelow gave his name to the nurse in attendance in the waiting-room—an attractive, competent-looking young woman with auburn hair. Then he waited with what patience he could muster until Austrelitz had got rid of a number of patients. However, he had plenty to occupy his mind. . . . Austrelitz was still sitting behind his big desk when Bigelow was finally ushered in half an hour later. He was looking tired, Bigelow noted.

"Did Strong call upon you?" asked the doctor, nodding a greeting and wasting no time over preliminaries.

"Yes, but I admitted nothing and denied nothing," answered Bigelow. "Did he call on you, too?"

"Yes—with the same result," stated the doctor. He drew forward a hardwood cabinet and opened it with an eager air to select a cigar. "I somehow feel disinclined to accept his statement that Dryden refrained from making this disclosure to the police, simply out of a quixotic impulse to shield two men completely unknown to him."

To Shield His Wife?
Austrelitz carefully pierced the end of the cigar and lighted it. "It doesn't sound very convincing, now that I think of it," said Bigelow thoughtfully.

"No. We must admit that—judged by his conduct throughout this affair—the man would seem to be an impulsive, hot-headed fool. But he had a whole day to consider his situation after the announcement of Vronski's murder and before his arrest. He must have realized the delicacy of his position. It must have become plain to him upon careful reflection, that his one hope of clearing himself from this charge lay in fixing the suspicions of the police in another quarter. Why then didn't he use this weapon of defense which lay already in his hands? Why didn't he attempt to arouse doubts of his own guilt by implicating us? He'd never even met either of us. He owed us no consideration."

Bigelow nodded. "Why do you think?"

"Could he have been afraid to center attention on us for fear the trail might lead back to his wife?" asked Austrelitz.

"How could he have been?" asked Bigelow, puzzled. "I've never met his wife. Have you?"

"Yes, I've met her. But I know her only very casually. . . . "Do you think Dryden knows you've met her? Do you think he thinks you know her better than you do—that she might have come to you to help her against Vronski?"

"I don't know. But I can think of no other reason for him to remain silent except to shield his wife. Perhaps that is why he sent his lawyer to us—to find out just how we were involved before betraying us to the police. So that if his wife were involved with us, he could withhold the information altogether."

"It sounds plausible," admitted Bigelow. "And when we refused to give any information whatever, he planted a 'shadow' on my trail to see what he could discover without our assistance."

"A 'shadow,'" repeated Austrelitz. "Yes. He's out there, now." (Copyright, 1937, Frederick Jackson)

MARTIAL LAW IS DECLARED IN LOUISVILLE

Army Heeds Request From Governor as Two-Thirds of City Is Flooded.

Louisville, Jan. 26 (AP)—Gov. A. B. Chandler ordered martial law for flood-beleaguered Louisville Monday night to combat pestilence, panic and starvation.

The governor called on President Roosevelt to put a federal military governor and army troops in control of Louisville, two-thirds of whose population of 330,000 was being evacuated to high ground.

The war department immediately granted the request and General Malin Craig, army chief of staff, authorized Brig. Gen. William K. Naylor, commanding officer of the Fifth Army corps area, to send five companies of infantry into the flood-swept area.

One battalion of four companies, approximately 600 men, will be sent to Louisville, and one company to Frankfort.

All are expected to be ordered to emergency flood duty from the 11th Infantry at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

Will Assist Refugees

The troops will be under orders to co-operate with local authorities in maintaining order and assisting refugees.

The appeal for federal martial law came from Mayor Neville Miller's emergency committee, which unanimously adopted a resolution declaring such a step necessary. The governor acted after telephone calls from Mayor Miller and General Naylor. They had conferred all day in the city hall, which sandbags protected from the rising flood of the Ohio river.

The yellow spume of the Ohio river and Beargrass creek, which in normal times an athlete could jump but now covers business blocks and homes, continued to rise slowly. Heavy rains and sleet sent the flood out of control, resulting in orders for evacuation of the west section of the city.

The weather bureau predicted a crest of 58.1 feet by tonight or early Wednesday. The previous top was 46.7 in 1884. Flood stage here is 28 feet.

To the highlands and Crescent hill district east of Beargrass creek, floodless except for backed up sewer water in places, haggard refugees were transported by trucks to the swollen creek, ferried over and then hurried in trucks, ambulances and buses to relief centers.

Before martial law had been declared the city had a war-time appearance. Food and water were rationed. Electric power had been cut off by the flood. Tapers and kerosene lamps lighted homes and the few stores that remained open. City street cars were abandoned on streets still topping the water. No newspapers were published here but the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times published a four page paper at Shelbyville and sent it in.

General Motors Not to Talk Peace Until Union Quits Plants

New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—Alfred R. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors corporation, Monday declined an invitation from Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins to a conference in Washington Wednesday to negotiate a settlement of the General Motors strike.

Sloan made public a letter to the secretary declining the invitation.

"We cannot see our way clear," he said to accept the invitation "to negotiate further with the union while its representatives continue to hold our plants unlawfully."

Conference Futile, He Says

In his letter Sloan said that John L. Lewis, chairman of the committee for industrial reorganization which is pressing for industrial unionization, "has taken the position that the plants would not be evacuated until we agree to recognize the United Automobile Workers of America as the exclusive bargaining agency for all General Motors workers.

"In the face of this positive assertion and in view of the principles for which we stand, we are convinced the conference you have suggested would lead to no beneficial result any more than did the proceedings of last week."

Sloan referred to the unsuccessful separate meetings held in Washington by Miss Perkins with General Motors officials and with Lewis. In Washington Lewis was reported frowning on the proposed conference because he expected that it would be asked to renew the "Lansing agreement" which called for evacuation of the sit-in strikers while the dispute was arbitrated.

Miss Perkins issued her invitation Sunday night, invoking the powers mandated to the labor department when it was organized in 1913.

Her invitation to Sloan and Lewis stipulated that the two opposing leaders were to attend "without condition or prejudice."

The invitations went also to other General Motors officials and to Homer Martin president of the U. A. W. A., which is conducting the strike.

PRO GAME SAME AS COLLEGES, SAYS GRANGE

Houston, Texas (AP)—Professional football is nothing more than "post graduate" work for college men, according to Harold (Red) Grange, acting coach of the Chicago Bears, pro team.

"The games are remarkably alike," says Grange. "You have to be much better and more versatile to play football but we treat our players like the colleges do. If they are injured, salaries continue and all hospital expenses are paid. Training rules are just as rigid."

"I could call the names of two or three men who would have been great professional stars. But they wouldn't train. And soon we dropped them from the squad—just like a college coach would do."

phia.The fox chase on Thursday last was sport for the hunters and hounds as well as the red fox, as he has not been heard from since the start from Lewis Ramey's restaurant.Among Gov. Beaver's first appointments was that of Jacob Augh-inbaugh, of this place, as notary public. His confirmation was delayed by an objection from Senator Martin.John T. Weikert, of Cumberland township, recently slaughtered a hog which weighed 458 pounds. Mr. W. got 130 pounds of lard and did not cut up any of the sides.On Friday last as Mr. W. K. Shick was returning from a business trip to Fairfield, the horse he was driving took suddenly sick and died on the road. The horse belonged to Superintendent H. D. Scott.The annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held in Harrisburg on February 8th and 9th. Hanson W. Lightner, P.
C., N. G. Wilson and W. D. Holtzworth are the representatives of Corporal Skelly post.Gov. Beaver! Pennsylvania's new governor, inaugurated with Great Display: General James A. Beaver
was Tuesday inaugurated governor of Pennsylvania for the term of four years, the surroundings of the occasion being most magnificent in the way of a display and forming a remarkable contrast to the inauguration of Governor Pattison four years ago, when there was no display whatever. Harrisburg was crowded, and it is estimated that at least twenty-five thousand strangers were within its gates as sightseers.Speaker Boyer rapped his gavel,
and the future assemblage stood up, while Rev. George B. Stewart offered a most beautiful prayer for strength to those about to assume power.Chief Clerk Cochran then read the certificate of the election of James A. Beaver as governor.Lieutenant Governor Black announced that the oath of office
would be administered, and General Beaver, leaning on his crutches, raised his right hand, while Chief Justice Mercer administered the oath of office. Lieutenant Governor Black almost touching elbows with him during the solemn ceremony.The written oath was then subscribed by Governor Beaver, and the jurat of the chief justice was attached thereto, when Lieutenant Governor Black declared in a firm voice that James A. Beaver was now governor of Pennsylvania, and introduced him to deliver his inaugural.As Governor Beaver stood up
there was loud applause and immediately the cannon in the park began to boom out a governor's salute, the report rattling the windows of the house. Governor Beaver, after acknowledging the cordial greeting, delivered his inaugural address.Accidents: On Thursday evening last as Charles Herbert and John C. Lower, of McKnightstown, were returning from Waynesboro to Hagerstown, their horse became unmanageable and began to kick. Mr. Herbert jumped from the carriage and received a slight wound in his ankle.
Mr. Lower, having the reins, remained in the buggy, trying to quiet the horse and received a kick that shattered his leg just below the knee.
Mr. Lower was taken to Hagerstown and Dr. Mason rendered the needed surgical aid. He is doing well.

On Saturday morning George W.

Stallsmith, whilst operating a small circular saw at the foundry, cut the end off of the first finger of his left hand and the second finger was lacerated. The first finger was amputated at the first joint on Sunday.On Thursday evening a coasting accident happened on the Stratton street hill, by which Calvin Gilbert, son of Capt. Gilbert, ruptured the ligaments of his ankle.Last evening W. Hanson Pfeiffer fell on the pavement of South Baltimore street and fractured the small bone of his left leg. Dr. J.
Bion Scott rendered the surgical attention.Senator Martin has been appointed a member of the following senate committees: Federal relations, education, appropriations, public buildings and agriculture. The duties will fully occupy his time.In the house Mr. Dicks was appointed on the following committee:
Compare bills, elections and pensions and gratuities; Mr. Rice on insurance and manufacturing.Deaths: Bucher—Jan. 20, in Franklin township, Clyde Bushey, son of Larkin J. and Minnie E.
Bucher, aged 5 months and 27 days.

of George Geyer, aged 21 years, 3 months and 18 days.Kitsmiller—Jan. 20, in this place, Mrs. Eve Kitsmiller, aged 69 years,
11 months and 19 days.Memorial Monuments: Senator Martin has introduced a bill appropriating $50,000 to erect monuments to Generals George G. Meade, and Winfield S. Hancock, on this battlefield. They were both illustrious Pennsylvania soldiers, and the bill should pass. Mr. Dicks introduced a similar bill in the house.Notice—I am prepared to call

MAN AND MACHINES

For counting coins they've made machines.For checking dates and sex and color.For sorting blacks and blues and greens.That none shall brighter be or duller.And yet man's mind that works such wonders.Has no machine to check his blunders.Machines detect with cunning skill
The flaws too deep for human vision.Before the harm is done they will Discard the part that lacks precision.Yet many a friendship here lies broken.By thoughts a man should not have spoken.The hasty words that leave the tongue.Have no device to sort and test them.Once to the lips of man they've sprung.There are no guards that can arrest them.No photo cells to sort and choose And check the ones not fit to use.I watched a strange machine and sawHow men with metals seek perfection.The bit that had the tiniest flaw
Was thrown aside upon detection;But man still lets his blunders wreck him.He speaks and acts with naught to check him.

Pope Fortified by

Stimulants, Medicine

Vatican City, Jan. 26 (AP).—Pope XI, fortified by stimulants and medicine to soothe pain in his ailing legs, spent almost all of Monday in his wheeled divan receiving several prelates.The 79-year-old pontiff received injections which were said to have prevented any immediate threat of a gargantuan complication, and the treatment will be continued.Unable to participate in a ceremony commemorating the 19th centennial of the conversion of St. Paul, the holy father permitted Monsignor Roberto Vincentini, patriarch of Antioch, to celebrate mass at the papal altar in St. Paul's church.

"UNLUCKIEST" RESIDENT

OF HUNTINGTON OFFERS

TITLE TO ALL COMERS

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 26 (AP).— William Mannon has avoided breaking mirrors and walking under ladders, but he was born on Friday the 13th and unwillingly
claims the title of Huntington's
"unluckiest man."Several weeks ago he returned from a shopping trip to find his automobile stolen. He left his packages in a store while he phoned his car was hopelessly wrecked.
police. The packages disappeared.
Last week he tore ligaments in his foot. Later in the morning a dog tore his trousers and bit him.
He threw a flashlight at the dog. It was broken.Now Mannon is taking anti-rhus serum. Says he:"The title is open to anybody who wants it."

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

MR. JOHNSON

MR. JOHNSON came in on me anew Christmas morning. The medium —Boswell's Tour to the Hebrides, the gift of a friend.The first evening I thought I would just cut the leaves of the book.
But the old Doctor kept jumping up at me, with his wise and quaint sayings, until I soon discovered that hours had passed as though they had been but minutes. That's the way a great book has. "Thanks to Boswell," wrote Carlos Martyn, "we know Dr. Johnson." Not only do we know him, but we feel that we are actually in his presence as Boswell reveals him, through his own words, from page to page of his diary.This new book just published in a limited (unfortunately), beautiful edition, is mostly from new material, and it is a delight. Anything that Boswell has to say about this remarkable man, Dr. Johnson, is always interesting. Speaking of a woman whom he evidently did not admire, he said: "This woman would sink a ninety-gun ship. She is so dull—so heavy."At another conversation, discussing life, Johnson said: "For however bad any man's existence may be, every man would rather have it than not exist at all. No, there is no rational principle by which a man can be contented, but a trust in the mercy of God, through the merits of Jesus Christ."Not in all history or literature has there been an instance of such measuring and marking of a man as Boswell has bequeathed in his diaries of Dr. Johnson. And what a rich heritage it is for each of us, for no more human, generous, or interesting a character have we in all literature.An extraordinary character, too. So poor in early life that he had hardly enough to keep body and soul together. It is said that someone once left a pair of shoes on his front steps for him, but he threw them away—too proud to accept such a gift, and when his mother died he wrote his famous Rasseas in three weeks to pay for her funeral expense.He wrote a dictionary that alone would have made him famous. But in Boswell's great life of him we walk and talk and live with the great human being himself. This additional record by Boswell endears Johnson the more to us.

Vote $4,800,000
For State ReliefHarrisburg, Jan. 26.—The house
Monday night passed the Cohen measure that appropriates $4,800,000 for unemployment relief. This sum with a balance of $500,000 that will be left at the end of this month is believed to be sufficient for February's relief needs.Representative Ellwood J. Turner, Delaware, minority floor leader,
brought out in interrogations put to Assemblyman Herbert B. Cohen, York, majority floor leader, that there was no time limit placed on the expenditure of the money and that it was not appropriated from any specific fund.The bill's sponsor said that the house had just read for the first time the Ominsky bill providing for self-assessment by corporations in paying their corporate taxes, and that this was expected to bring in sufficient funds. He said he believed that the provision would net
the state $45,000,000 that otherwise would not be collected for several months.Natives of American Samoa are

Of Two in BlazeChambersburg, Pa., Jan. 26 (AP)
—The Franklin county grand jury indicted Ralph Hawk, 20-year-old farmland, on charges of murder Monday, in connection with the death of a mother and her daughter in their burning home at nearby
Marion on New Year's eve.The victims were Mrs. Hazel Gelwix, 39, and Helen Gelwix, 15.
The grand jury also indicted the farmland on charges of arson and assault and battery with intent to kill Catherine Gelwix, another daughter, and Hawk's fiancée.Corporal A. B. Snyder, of the state police, said Hawk confessed he set fire to the Gelwix home after striking Catherine on the head with a flashlight because he did not want to marry her.Catherine, recovering from a fractured skull, testified before the grand jury.

FIREMEN SOLVE PROBLEM

Erie, Pa. (AP).—Smoke billowed
from a mailbox but firemen hesitated to quench the fire. Someone pointed out the possibility of fed-quirk by inserting the nozzle of a hose in the letter slot. They said a lighted cigaret had been thrown

BALTIMORE UNION STOCK YARDS.
The salable supply of live stock on sale at the opening of the week was made up of 1,000 cattle, 675 calves, 2,000 hogs and about 500 sheep. A sizable number of holdovers were included in the cattle, calf and sheep divisions.
Cattle—Character and class distribution was about normal in the cattle division. The rather small volume was an important factor in price stability as mild weather continued to act as a dull influence. Sellers asked strong to higher prices as against weak to lower bids on the part of the buyers. The result was a rather slow market on steers at about steady prices. Fairly good action developed on cows and bulls at fully steady terms, while a few head of heifers sold fully steady. Most steers were common and medium grade short feds scaling under 1,200 pounds, which sold at $24.00 to $25.00, few real plain sorts downward to $7. A few loads of good, 1,000-1,200-pound steers brought $10.25 to $10.50. A scattering of common and medium grade heifers sold at $6.85, a few cullery kinds down to $5. Most of the low cullery and culler cows brought $3.75 to $5.00, a few shelly kinds down to $3.50 or below. Common and medium grades of cows brought $4.75 to $5.75, a few good ones up to $6.25 and above. Common and medium grade bulls went at $6.65 to $7.00, good heifers up to $7.50 and above. Light culler bulls down to $5.50 or below. The supply of vealers was small, as plain southern calves and yearlings made up the bulk of receipts in the calf division. Prices were generally around steady with the close of last week. Medium and good grades of vealers sold at $12.13; common vealers, $8.10; culls, $7.00. A few light-weight calves under 80 pounds sold down to $2 per head. Bulk of the grades of Southern shipments, which were of calf weights, but mostly of yearling

Gabriel's Knob

Do you know where Gabriel's Knob is situated?

About one and one-half miles from the Mason and Dixon line, in Bedford county, is located the small town of Artemas. Overlooking this hamlet nestled in a narrow valley is Gabriel's Knob, which to lifelong residents of the community isn't more than a mountain, but to visitors Gabriel's Knob is a beautiful peak, stately and awe-inspiring.

Artemas was named for its first settler, Artemas Bennett. The post office was established in 1892 and has been managed by one of the Bennett family ever since.

Ashland

Do you know that Ashland, in Schuylkill county, was named in honor of Henry Clay's birthplace, Ashland, Kentucky?

Ashland is located on Route 122. This is the highway that used to be known as the old Center Turn Pike, from Philadelphia to Williamsport. Along this route are ruins of many old land marks, including taverns and water troughs used in the days when stage coaches were popular.

It is claimed that General Grant, while President of the United States, made an over-night stop in Ashland at the Repeller House.

interesting place to visit by those who love to delve into historical facts?

This furnace was erected in 1779 by Jacob Leshner and operated by him until 1868. From 1868 to 1877 it was in charge of Reuben Trexler, son-in-law of Jacob Leshner. It then became known as Trexler Furnace. From 1877 to 1889 Reuben Trexler's son, Horatio, became the owner.

The Historical Society of Berks county erected a marker at the furnace site in 1924. The location of the furnace is near Bowers on the highway between Lyons and Tappan.

Alburtis

Do you know that the town of Alburtis, in Lehigh county, was named for a contractor because he provided employment for very many people?

When the East Pennsylvania branch of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway was built in 1857-58 between Alburtis and Allentown a distance of twelve miles, Allen Burtis was the contractor. Because he provided work for so many people in that community he was considered a community benefactor. When the town was incorporated as a borough on May 9, 1913, the citizens honored the man who had provided work for people in the previous generation by naming the town Alburtis.

Bashful Beginners Flock to Nudism as Camp Okays Shorts

By SAM JACKSON

Alma, Calif. (AP)—An "off and on" brand of nudism, in which you may wear clothing or not, just as you please, has built up a flourishing colony here.

The concession to modesty or chill winds is in effect at the Elysium foundation, which nestles in a snug little valley at the base of the Santa Cruz mountains. And because Director George Marcelus Spray has made things so easy for bashful beginners, the membership roster exceeds 250 and is constantly growing.

Young Mr. Spray, a former radio continuity writer, who claims to have been an exponent of nudism for 14 years, says he is not compromising with the cult's credo that "sun, light and air are vital conditions of human well-being."

'Mostly Mental'

He considers the nudist way of life, however, to be "90 per cent mental, only 10 per cent physical," and as a result sees no harm in allowing his cohorts to put on shorts if they wish. In fact, when they file into the colony's dining hall he requires them all to wear shorts. And on the frequent occasion of a dance they must wear as many clothes as if going to a church bazaar.

His attitude toward visitors is equally matter-of-fact. "Man! nudist colonies strictly exclude visitors and the rare one who gains entry must strip at the gate. Anyone with legitimate business may drive right into Elysium and if he happens to see a couple of nymphs flit through the bushes there is not supposed to be any embarrassment on either side."

No Trouble With Public

Elysium occupies a 109-acre pocket among hills covered with almost unpenetrable undergrowth and the only entrance is through a narrow canyon. A gate which automatically rings alarm bells when opened bars the entrance.

HUNTS TURKEYS IN HER OWN BACK YARD

Ava, Mo. (AP)—Mrs. Fred Spurlock did her turkey hunting in her own back yard.

Noticing two wild gobblers had been coming regularly to the tame turkeys in her poultry yard, she borrowed a shotgun and lay in wait. The first day she fired and missed. The next day she threw a rock—and missed. The third day she missed again with the shot-gun. The fourth day she pulled both triggers and bagged an 18-pound gobbler.

SOUNDED LIKE BIG ORDER FOR POLICE

San Francisco (AP)—Listeners in on the police radio thought patrol car Taraval No. 1 was getting a big order when they heard this: "Man annoying woman between Athens and Moscow. Respond."

To the radio patrolmen it was simply enough, and they went to the rescue of a lady in distress in the range of streets named after European capitals.

PIGS IS PIGS— AND MAYBE BIG PROFIT

Potter, Neb. (AP).—Pigs really mean something to Fred Reetz, who points to his pyramid of profits from one $36 hog. A year ago Reetz bought a hog for $36 and recently sold it for $56.10. While he owned the hog, it raised 11 pigs which sold for $352.

guardsmen were busy throughout the day rescuing a seemingly endless number of individuals from points of peril atop floating buildings, in tree tops and in attics. Once a house drifted beneath the huge suspension bridge connecting Cincinnati with its Kentucky suburbs. Boatmen were quickly to the rescue.

Flood Waters Conceal Number Dead in Prison

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 26 (AP)—

Whispered reports of fatal shootings and riots in the flood-swept Kentucky state penitentiary came Monday from national guardsmen and convicts evacuating the century-old prison.

One national guard officer, helping to remove the 2,900 prisoners, said at least a dozen convicts were dead. "I don't know how many were killed," said another guardsman. The guard officers said there had been sporadic shooting since last Friday to break the convicts' incessant chanting.

The reports could not be confirmed officially. Gov. A. B. Chandler, who took personal charge of the evacuation, said:

"We don't know how many, if any, are dead. We will have no idea what the real situation is until the water goes down."
